INSPIRING SPACES

The talented team at Berglund Architects, located in Edwards, CO, works intimately with clients to create sophisticated designs with a welcoming, casual elegance.

What lies at the heart of your design philosophy?

We believe architecture has the power to positively affect our clients’ life experiences and connect them to the outdoors and to each other. This goal informs everything we do. We achieve this through creating uplifting, inspiring spaces with high ceilings and large windows and doors that bring in lots of natural light and capture views. Our designs provide a strong indoor-outdoor connection through the use of carefully crafted and cleanly detailed palette of rich, natural materials subtly juxtaposed to modern industrial elements like exposed steel. In addition, we incorporate unique artistic sculptural elements into the design through key elements such as fireplaces and stairs.

How do you help your clients envision their home as it goes from concept to reality?

We provide our clients with hand sketches and 3D computer modeling throughout the design process to study the scale, proportion and continuity of material and spaces that allow us to create spaces that flow from the interior to the exterior from the detailed structure of the building all the way down to the door handle.

How do you incorporate the concept of indoor-outdoor living into your designs?

An emphasis central to every home we work on is positioning the home to maximize the site features, the sun exposure and the ability to step out into the landscape and invite it in. We spend extensive time on-site at the beginning of the design process laying out the house footprint and to study all of the site’s opportunities and challenges. We set up tables and chairs so we can brainstorm and draw concepts on-site with our clients. In addition, we strategically position decks and patios, provide ample covered outdoor space and incorporate large floor-to-ceiling sliding doors and windows at every opportunity.
